Course description:

The Sophomore Colloquium is the first of a series of five that constitutes the core of the COL program. It is designed to explore the literature, history, and philosophy of 20th century Europe around a chosen theme. This semester, we will focus on war and its consequences in the 20th century. From the revolutions in Russia, WWI, WWII, decolonization and the cold war, European letters have expressed the issues of war and its aftermaths in particular and fascinating ways. We will read and discuss how and what 20th c. European literature and philosophy have had to say following the major upheavals of the 20th century.

PAPERS: Aside from reading and taking part in class discussions, you will be required to write three papers on the topic of your choice to explore further an issue raised by our readings and class discussions. You should turn in two (2) copies of each paper to be independently reviewed and evaluated by each instructor. Late papers will not be accepted. There is no final examination for this class. Thorough written evaluations are offered as a substitute for letter grades and missing papers are recorded in these evaluations.
