Wesleyan University
Graduate Liberal Studies

Graduate Certificate in Writing
Capstone Guidelines
2018-2019

NOTE: Students pursuing the Certificate as part of a degree (MALS or MPhil) must adhere to the guidelines for capstones/theses specific to those degrees.
Overview

The capstone is the final course in the Graduate Certificate in Writing program. It is an advanced program of independent study within the Graduate Certificate in Writing, in which the student produces either a critical essay based on academic research (app. 30 pages) or a creative piece (length determined by advisor).

The capstone is an opportunity to pursue, in depth, a topic of the student's choosing, under the guidance of a faculty member. The capstone provides evidence of the student's ability to independently produce, organize, and complete a graduate-level scholarly or creative work for academic credit.

NOTE: Students pursuing the Certificate as part of a degree (MALS or MPhil) must adhere to the guidelines for capstones/theses specific to those degrees.

Academic Essay

An academic essay is a written work of approximately 30 pages in length, to allow the student to fully introduce and develop the topic, incorporate the relevant literature (as applicable), and summarize the conclusions. The essay must be completed under the supervision of a qualified faculty advisor.

Creative Piece

A creative piece could include a collection of poems, short stories, a short novel, a screenplay, or other creative writing. The length and scope of a creative work produced for the capstone will be set by the advisor.

Overview of the Proposal Process

Step-by-step Timeline on pp. 7-9

After doing some initial research on your proposed topic, you will arrange a meeting with the GLS Writing Consultant (Elizabeth Bobrick) and Assistant Director for Student Services (Glenn Knight). Following this meeting, you will prepare a brief abstract, preliminary bibliography, and brief outline before approaching a possible advisor. You will end up with a more concrete subject with which you can approach a potential advisor, and you will also have identified at least one potential advisor in an appropriate field. If Glenn Knight and Elizabeth are not able, in this meeting, to identify a potential advisor for you, a second meeting with Glenn Knight may be required. These will help you to convince the faculty member of the value of your project as well as your ability to accomplish your goals. If the advisor agrees to advise you, you will contact Glenn Knight, who will contact the advisor to finalize his or her participation. You will then will meet one-on-one with Elizabeth in order to fully prepare your formal proposal as outlined in the following pages.

During your appointment with Elizabeth, you will review the work you have prepared. This is the appropriate time for you to receive objective feedback on the writing and the construction of the proposal. Elizabeth may subsequently choose to meet with your advisor to ensure that your project proposal meets the advisor’s expectations.
Once a faculty member has agreed to serve as your advisor, the two of you will set up a timetable for meetings and submission of drafts. This timetable is a required component of the proposal. It is your responsibility to keep your advisor apprised of your progress. In most cases, students and advisors need to meet two to four times: initially, to finalize a topic, then to review drafts. Keep in mind that your advisor must have enough time to read and evaluate your work before returning it to you with comments, and that you will need time to incorporate those comments. You should also be prepared for the possibility that your advisor will request significant changes to every draft, including your proposed final version.

Choosing a Topic

You will be spending a lot of time with your chosen topic, so reflect carefully, and choose a topic of compelling, sustainable interest to you.

Requirements:

- The topic must be compatible with Wesleyan’s liberal arts curriculum
- There must be an appropriate advisor for the topic who is available and willing to be an advisor
- The topic must be approved by the GLS director

Where to begin:

The most successful capstones arise from ideas developed in previous coursework. You should think back through your GLS courses for ideas and topics. Choosing a topic in which you have already done some research will make the capstone much more manageable, because you already have a base of knowledge and research from which to draw. You may also choose to consult with faculty members about ideas.

Many liberal arts topics in your concentration area may be chosen for the capstone. However, professional projects such as lesson plans, business plans, instruction manuals, or purely technical descriptions are not consistent with Wesleyan’s curriculum and may not be approved for the essay or project. Areas of inquiry not taught at Wesleyan may not be approved.

Choosing a Faculty Advisor

The capstone must be completed under the guidance of a faculty advisor with expertise in the student’s chosen topic. The faculty advisor serves as the expert on the academic subject and discipline-specific style.

Requirements:

- The advisor must be
  - A member of the Wesleyan faculty
  - A visiting faculty member who has taught at Wesleyan within the previous calendar year
  - A GLS visiting lecturer who has offered a course in the program within two years prior to starting work on the proposal
- The advisor must be available to serve as an advisor throughout the entire process
- The advisor must be approved by the GLS director
Where to begin:

The best place to begin is with your previous GLS instructors. During your initial meeting with the GLS Writing Consultant and Assistant Director for Student Services, you will brainstorm possible advisors. Choosing a faculty advisor with whom you have previously studied is strongly encouraged because the faculty member is already familiar with your academic work and you are already familiar with his or her expectations and critical methods.

If it is not possible to work with a previous GLS instructor, you will need to find a faculty member or recent GLS instructor who has expertise in the area of your master's essay or project.

Once someone has provisionally agreed to serve as your advisor, please notify Glenn Knight at gknight01@wesleyan.edu so that crucial administrative information can be sent to your advisor.

Student-Advisor Relationship and Responsibilities

The student and faculty advisor will work together from the development of the initial proposal through to the completion of the final revisions. It is important for both the student and the advisor to understand their responsibilities to ensure that the student-advisor relationship is successful.

The faculty advisor should:

- Ensure that the student's proposal is sufficiently detailed so that it communicates the intent and viability of the proposed topic
- Ensure that the student is meeting the goals of the proposal during the development of the official draft
- Serve as an academic subject expert to the student, helping to identify source materials, etc.
- Assist the student in meeting the requirements of the style manual used for the particular capstone (e.g., APA, MLA, Chicago, Turabian), unless other arrangements are made with the student. Please note that students should always use the latest edition of any publication style manual

The student should:

- Ask the advisor for help when necessary
- Implement changes suggested by the advisor
- Keep in contact with the advisor on a regular basis, as agreed upon, in your timetable

Proposal Structure

The proposal is the foundation on which the capstone is developed. You should view the proposal not as just a description of what you intend to accomplish, but as the first step in the development of the work. The proposal should be a detailed document that incorporates research, coursework, and timeframes for completion. In addition to serving as a guide to the student throughout the development of the capstone, a thoroughly-developed proposal also demonstrates to the GLS director that you have a clear vision and plan for accomplishing your goals.
Publication Style Manual Guidelines

Students should select the style manual appropriate to their discipline (i.e., APA, MLA, Chicago Style, or Turabian) and should follow the style manual for the proposal as well as the final work. Students should pay particular attention to and adhere to the style manual requirements in the following areas (this list is not intended to be all encompassing):

- Title page (see page 11 of this handbook)
- Copyright page (optional)
- Preface or acknowledgements
- Margins
- Table of contents
- Chapters (headers)
- Footnotes or endnotes
- Use and placement of quotes and punctuation
- References, bibliography, list of works cited/consulted
- Citations
- Figures (charts, graphs, maps, photos, drawings) and tables
- Appendices

Copies of the style manuals below can typically be found in libraries or can be purchased at a bookstore such as the Wesleyan R. J. Julia Bookstore, 413 Main Street, Middletown, CT 06459; (860) 685-3939. The below list of references follows the APA publication style manual.

Proposal Requirements

Title page (1 page)

The title page must include a working title, formatted exactly as the sample (found on page 11).

Proposal (2-1/2 to 4 pages)

1. Abstract (3 or 4 sentences)

   In one paragraph, state the central question, theme, or problem your capstone will address. Do not use generalizations—state your issue in the form of a developed thesis statement.
2. Development of topic
Provide a detailed description of the topic and the academic context (i.e., the problems or issues in the field that the essay/project will address). This discussion may include a description of a hypothesis, anticipated results, process, product, artistic direction planned, or expected findings.

3. Methodology
Have a discussion with your advisor about the structure and format of the methodology you’ll be expected to use. Address the academic disciplines from which you will draw and explain which of these disciplines will inform the methodology you use. Provide a detailed description of the methods of inquiry and analysis.

4. Literature review: analysis of scholarly context
Review the available literature on the topic: what is already known about the topic? What is not known? How does this information relate to the proposed work?

5. Wesleyan Resources
Meet with a reference librarian who can discuss your topic with you and direct you to the library resources available at Wesleyan that will support your project. Please also list any faculty you hope to use as a resource.

Appendices (in addition to the above)

1. Timetable
Document the key milestones required to complete the master’s essay or project in a specified timeframe and provide a description of how you will interact with your faculty advisor: schedule of meetings, timeframe for response and feedback, key dates to deliver information for review, review for publication style compliance, etc.

2. Bibliography (2 to 4 pages)
Preliminary list of the source materials to be used (libraries, readings, references, labs, field area, etc.), documented using one of the publication styles (i.e., APA, MLA, Chicago, or Turabian).

3. All documents required for IRB approval (required only if student plans to use human subjects as data)

Timeline: Capstone Submission and Review

Students may submit the proposal for the Graduate Certificate in Writing capstone as early as during their fourth or fifth GLS course, but no later than 6 weeks prior to the start of the term in which the work will be done.

Students are expected to complete the capstone in one term; this should be the final course toward the Certificate. If a student is unable to complete the capstone during that one term, the student may petition to continue into the following term. No extensions will be granted beyond the two-term maximum. If the student does not complete the final work by the end of the first term, the student will be given an incomplete grade with a provisional grade. If the work is not completed by the end of the second term, the provisional grade will become the final grade.
<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>Step</th>
<th>When</th>
<th>Action</th>
<th>Resource(s) you will work with</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>1.</td>
<td>12 weeks prior to the start of the term</td>
<td>After doing some initial research on your proposed topic, you will arrange a meeting with the Assistant Director for Student Services. From this meeting, you will end up with a more concrete subject and you will also have identified at least one potential advisor in an appropriate field.</td>
<td>AD, Graduate Liberal Studies</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>2.</td>
<td>9-10 weeks before the start of term</td>
<td>You will meet with the GLS Writing Consultant. During your appointment with the GLS Writing Consultant, you will review the work you have prepared. This is the appropriate time for you to receive objective feedback on the writing and the construction of the proposal. The Writing Consultant may subsequently choose to meet with your advisor to ensure that your project proposal meets the advisor’s expectations. Note: If neither the Assistant Director of Graduate Liberal Studies nor the Writing Consultant is able, in these meetings, to identify a potential advisor for you, a second meeting with the Assistant Director of Graduate Liberal Studies may be required.</td>
<td>Writing Consultant</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
| 3.   | 7-9 weeks before the start of term | You will prepare a brief abstract, preliminary bibliography, and brief outline before approaching a possible advisor. These will help you to convince the faculty member, when you present the documents to them, of the value of your project as well as your ability to accomplish your goals.

Now you will be ready to approach a potential advisor. If the advisor agrees to advise you, you will contact the AD, Graduate Liberal Studies, who will reach out to the advisor to finalize his or her participation.

Once a faculty member has agreed to serve as your advisor, you will both set up a timetable for meetings and submission of drafts. This timetable is a required component of the proposal. It is your responsibility to keep your advisor apprised of your progress. In most cases, students and advisors need to meet two to four times in the proposal stage: initially, to finalize a topic, then to review drafts. Keep in mind that your advisor must have enough time to read and evaluate your work before returning it to you with comments, and that you will need time to incorporate those comments. You | Faculty Advisor AD, Graduate Liberal Studies                                                        | should also be prepared for the possibility that your advisor will request significant changes to every draft, including your proposed final version.

<table>
<thead>
<tr>
<th>4.</th>
<th>5-7 weeks before the start of term</th>
<th>Develop Rough Draft of Proposal as outlined in the following pages. Submit a draft proposal to masters@wesleyan.edu; our office will forward it to your advisor the Writing Consultant, with additional documentation. Do not send the proposal to them yourself.</th>
<th>N/A – Individual Effort</th>
</tr>
</thead>
<tbody>
<tr>
<td>5.</td>
<td>4-5 weeks before the start of term</td>
<td>Your advisor and the Writing Consultant may meet to review your draft proposal to ensure that both content and style guidelines are met.</td>
<td>Faculty Advisor Writing Consultant</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>6.</td>
<td>2-4 weeks before the start of term</td>
<td>Develop proposal Submit proposal: Email the final proposal, incorporating comments from your advisor and Writing Consultant, to masters@wesleyan.edu for approval by the Director.</td>
<td>Faculty Advisor</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>7.</td>
<td>1-2 weeks before the start of term</td>
<td>Incorporate Feedback from Director</td>
<td>N/A – Individual Effort</td>
</tr>
<tr>
<td>8.</td>
<td>1 week before the start of term</td>
<td>Submit Final Proposal to masters@wesleyan.edu The GLS Director, will approve or deny the project based on the proposal submitted in light of the previous comments from the advisor and the Writing Consultant. If your proposal is approved: Congratulations! You will be instructed by the office on how to enroll in your Capstone. If your proposal is denied: You may register for a course offered that term to complete the degree.</td>
<td>N/A – Individual Effort</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>

Making Changes After Approval of Final Proposal

Some of the most powerful learning opportunities in a Capstone occur during the development and finalization of Capstone proposals. The proposal is not intended to be a restrictive or inflexible document. It should serve as a guide for both the creative Capstone and the research Capstone. During the discovery and exploration of your topic, you may need to shift direction.
In this case, the faculty advisor must be consulted and you must explain in the final work the reasons for moving from the original premise or assumptions.

Use of Human Research Subjects

If your topic involves the use of human subjects (i.e., if you will interview and/or photograph people, etc.), you will need to get approval from Wesleyan’s Institutional Review Board (IRB). The need for IRB approval extends to any manner of research, including experiments, interviews, surveys, and other data collecting methods. This process is designed to protect the rights and welfare of human participants by ensuring that they are selected equitably, participating voluntarily, fully informed of the risks and benefits of the research, and that the research minimizes risks to humans and protects their privacy and confidentiality.

Most proposals will be granted an expedited IRB review. However, if the proposed research presents particular concerns, it will be subject to a full board review. The full process for submitting all projects to the IRB can be found online at wesleyan.edu/acaf/support/reviewboard.html. Your proposal to GLS should include all of the information you intend to submit to the IRB. After your proposal has been approved by GLS, you will submit the proposal to the IRB.

The IRB must be notified of any unanticipated problem involving risks to subjects or others, including physical or psychological injury to subjects, improper disclosure of private information, economic loss, or other potentially harmful occurrences.

Completing the Graduate Certificate in Writing Capstone

Submission of the Capstone

Once the capstone is completed and approved by the advisor, you must submit one digital copy to the GLS office to be kept in your file.

Sample Title Page

A sample title page, formatted as your page should be formatted, appears on page 11 of this handbook.

Completion

Once the capstone is approved and graded, credit will be awarded. Provided that all other certificate requirements have been met, the student's program is considered completed. Students earning only the certificate, and not a degree (MALS or MPhil) do not participate in commencement, but are welcome to attend the ceremony in the general audience, and to attend the GLS reception following the ceremony. For students enrolled in the Graduate Certificate Writing only: You will receive your Certificate and transcript in the mail within 8 weeks of the end of the term in which you completed the Certificate. For letters of completion, students must submit a written request to the GLS director (masters@wesleyan.edu), allowing 2 to 4 weeks following grade submission for requests to be processed. For additional official transcripts, students should submit transcript requests online at wesleyan.edu/registrar/forms/transcript_request.html.
Protecting Intellectual Property (optional)

Students might want to copyright their capstone work. Students can provide some level of copyright protection by inserting a single page that contains only the copyright information in the front of the document. The copyright information should be centered in the middle of the page, detailed as follows:

Copyright 2018 Jane E. Smith
SAMPLE TITLE PAGE

(The title page is not numbered. The font, type size, and style should be the same as in the manuscript (no bolding). Below is an example of the GLS format for the Capstone Proposal and Official Draft cover sheet. Please note: the font size should be 11 or 12 depending on your publication guide.)

HUMANISM, MODERNISM, IDEALISM, AND THE DANCE ART OF DORIS HUMPHREY

by

Jane E. Smith

Submitted to Wesleyan University in partial fulfillment of the requirements for the Graduate Certificate in Writing

March 2017

Anne Greene
Wesleyan University
University Professor of English