
CENTER FOR PEDAGOGICAL INNOVATION

The Center for Pedagogical Innovation (CPI) is dedicated to the inspiration, development, and dissemination of new teaching strategies and ideas. Our team offers faculty assistance with intensive course development or redesign. We work with new and established instructors alike to provide services at any stage from course conception to reflection. If you have an idea, even if it is as simple as trying something new for a lecture topic or assignment, we can help you develop and implement it.

THE CPI CAN PROVIDE SUPPORT FOR:

- Implementing universal design principles
 - Incorporating project-based learning
 - Flipping the classroom
 - Developing effective test questions
 - Organization & facilitation of faculty learning communities
 - Exploring interdisciplinary collaborations
 - Building alternative assessments
 - Using badging in pedagogy
 - Creating experiential or game-based learning activities
 - Developing distance learning initiatives
 - Introducing collaborative/team-based learning in the classroom
 - Developing courses for the Coursera on-line learning platform
 - Investigating promising pedagogical innovations
 - Connecting with outside institutions
-

The CPI currently partners with the Office of Faculty Career Development (OFCD), Information Technology Services (ITS), the Center for Global Studies (CGS), and Library Services to provide a team of experts to ensure that you get the support you need for your course development.

FOR MORE INFORMATION, PLEASE CONTACT

Jen Rose
Director, CPI
jrose01@wesleyan.edu

Jeffrey Goetz
Asst. Dir. of Instructional Design
jgoetz@wesleyan.edu

Kris McQueeney
Administrative Asst.
kmcqueeney@wesleyan.edu

Fisk Hall, Room 105, 860-685-3351