To the Wesleyan Community –

I hope this message finds you well and safe. Henri seems to be on his way out, thank goodness.

Wesleyan University will be at full operation on Monday, August 23. Although the University remains in full operation, employees should consider their own safety in determining when (or if) to report to work. Staff should discuss with direct supervisors if they need to make special arrangements. Please review the University's full severe weather policy for more information.

Students moving to campus should arrive as previously planned. Please coordinate as needed with the relevant department.

Thank you.

Scott Rohde
Director of Public Safety
