

CSS MONDAY LUNCH TALKS

SPRING 2023

- January 30 Haley Barr, Asa Sakornpant, Natchanok (Pim) Wandee
CSS Senior Capstone Essay Presentations
- February 6 Ka Ya Lee, CSS 2013, PhD candidate, Harvard Grad School of Education
“The Capability Approach and Educational Measurement: New Direction for Research”
- February 13 Matan Ackelsberg, Evan Eshel, Margot Deguet Delury,
Nika Marohnic, and Reed Schwartz
CSS Junior Study Abroad Presentations
- February 20 Mihai Olteanu, CSS 2018, PhD candidate, Johns Hopkins University
“Labor Regimes, Enlightenment, and the Wealth of Nations in the French Revolution”
- February 27 Philip Decker, PhD candidate, Princeton University Department of History
“The Unthinkable Rise of Racial Stalinism: Converging Worldviews in Nazi Germany and the Soviet Union, 1937-1941”
- March 6 Fiona Coffee, Associate Director for Programming and Performing Arts
The “National Theater” Model: National and Cultural Identity in Performance
- March 27 Avner Shavit, Center for Jewish Studies, Silverberg Scholar in Residence
“Think Swedish, sing English: The role of language in the European song contest”
- April 3 Lauren McCarthy, CSS '00, Associate Professor of Legal Studies and Political Science, U Mass Amherst
“How Russia Uses Law to Suppress Anti-War Sentiment”
- April 10 Gregory Conti, Assistant Professor of Politics at Princeton University
“The Structure of Anti-Democratic Thought in the Nineteenth Century”
- April 17 Alexander Furnas, CSS '11, Political Scientist, Northwestern University
“Factional differences in the use, trust, and funding of science in the United States”
- April 24 Carlotta Gidal, Jake Neuffer, Max O'Hare, and Nate Schultz
Senior Thesis Presentations