Dear Colleagues,

I recently had the opportunity to meet with some of our newest staff members and in the midst of the conversation about their experiences with our recruitment and onboarding processes, I was reminded of the importance of personal connections. It’s no secret that I am a proponent of flexible work arrangements including remote work, but at the same time, I’m reminded of the need for “intentionality” in making sure that we are not missing opportunities for connection. Technology can only do so much to bring us together in this new age (at least for higher education) of remote work. It is incumbent upon all of us to ensure that we all, but especially our new staff, have opportunities to experience the inviting environment that is uniquely Wesleyan.

The new staff were complementary about the quality of the interviews and offered several ideas about how we can make the interview and onboarding processes even better. The HR team will be working to incorporate feedback and sharing new ideas with our hiring managers. Always important, but especially during a very competitive recruitment environment, we want to put our best foot forward for candidates who are looking to join Wesleyan as their next career opportunity.

You will find an update on staff recruitment a bit further down in this newsletter. My heartfelt thanks to the HR team, our hiring managers, and our colleagues in Finance for the countless hours and energy that goes into bringing new staff to the University.
Before closing, I also want to acknowledge the loss of a long-term staff member, Mike Lynch. A 34-year veteran of the Wesleyan staff, Mike passed away in October. Mike first joined the University as a temperature control technician in the Pro-Tech group and was a well-respected member of the Physical Plant team since joining them in 2001 as an HVAC mechanic. My sincere condolences to Mike’s colleagues in Physical Plant.

With the falling of the leaves and the gorgeous weather, I hope that we are all able to take some time to rest and relax. There is much to do at Wesleyan thus making the need for a breath of fresh air even more important.

Stay Wesleyan Strong,
Lisa

Staff Recruitment Update
In the midst of a very competitive recruitment environment, Wesleyan has had the good fortune to bring many new staff members to the university. Thanks to the hard work of our hiring managers and the HR team, we have filled 70 positions and over 50 new staff have joined the Wesleyan community since July. Several positions are currently posted and many more are in various stages of the hiring process as we continue to focus on bringing the very best colleagues possible to Wesleyan.

In parallel with our work to fill positions, is the focus on ensuring that search committees are trained in best practices to minimize bias in the search process and on best practices that will help to ensure a successful search and candidate selection. The goal is to ensure that anyone who serves on a staff search committee has participated in these training opportunities. We will continue to offer these sessions through Success at WES. In addition, our colleagues in the Office of Equity and Inclusion have collaborated with HR in offering Success at WES sessions on diversity in recruitment. These sessions will continue as well, and we encourage anyone who is interested in serving on staff search committees to participate.
Questions regarding staff recruitment and related training sessions can be directed to Anjali Tamhankar, Director of Talent Acquisition and Employment.

2021 United Way Campaign
As you know, we launched our 2021 United Way Campaign just a couple of weeks ago! Through our two-decade long partnership with the Middlesex United Way we have demonstrated the impact of mobilizing the power of caring people. Since 2001 we have donated over $2 million. Last year alone, 318 Wesleyan employees contributed over $100,000!

Our contributions helped ensure that folks across the county - deeply impacted by the pandemic - receive critical housing, financial, and health and wellness supports. Unfortunately - as we know - in these uncertain times, the programs and services provided by the United Way continue to be much needed.
Through November 24th you can contribute to this very important work by donating to our United Way Campaign. Simply sign into WesPortal and click on the "Donor Form" link beneath the "United Way Campaign" banner. It will offer you the option of making a contribution via payroll deduction, a one-time credit card payment, or by cash/check. Any contribution is welcome. No donation is too small!

You can learn more about our United Way campaign here. If you have questions about this year's campaign please reach out directly to Clifton Watson.
